BIO

Nirvana Assadi Dabbah (b. 1981) lives and works in Acre, Israel. She holds B.Ed and MA from Oranim Academic College, Kiryat Tivon.

Assadi Dabbah held solo and group exhibitions in Israel. Her new solo exhibition is now on view at the Umm al-Fahem Art Gallery.

In 2017 she was awarded the Hecht Museum Prize for Young Artists.

Assadi Dabbah is a figurative painter and a former student of the renowned Israeli painter, Eli Shamir.

Her realist oil and pencil paintings are based on photographs by the artist, and deal with the world of the Palestinian woman from a young woman's perspective. Their imagery is drawn from the artist's own experiences and surroundings, forming a visual narration of her life-story. The tradition and culture on which she was brought up constitute a central preoccupation of her works, many of which are self-portraits.
